

Environmental Policy

As a company operating in the marine sector within the area of accommodation services (offshore hotel and offshore operation management), NMS Group is committed to protecting the health of our marine and global environment.

Our environmental policy is based on the following principles and behaviors:

- To comply with all required environmental legislation and regulations as well as other relevant standards for our business. Also to encourage even tougher voluntary standards in dialogue with the customer whenever possible.
- To promote the development and use of technologies that save energy and reduce environmental impact. Our participation in the business area of renewable energy is a part of this principle.
- To employ proper waste management systems to increase recycling and waste reduction. This includes reducing the amount of disposables used by guests onboard our vessels, and planning our catering purchases in dialogue with the customer to avoid food going to waste.
- To promote pollution prevention through risk assessments, safe procedures and well informed personnel. Should an accident occur, emergency response procedures and sanitation equipment are in place.
- All our employees are responsible for the protection of the environment in our daily operation. Therefore we will communicate environmental issues throughout the company and educate and encourage our employees to have a high level of awareness and knowledge of current environmental issues.
